GETTING BACK UP

What does being a skateboarder mean to you?

Here are some of the things I think about - the love of rolling on four wheels, friendship through a common bond, places of travel, that unmatched feeling of landing a hard earned trick for the first time - the list goes on. Along with the positive, comes the negative - breaking a board, getting kicked out by people who lack understanding, losing a sacred spot, getting hurt, bad weather - the list goes on.

Why is it that sometimes the let downs seem to have a stronger impact on us than the positives? What makes us go on? Why do we get back on our boards over and over again? There have been weeks, even months at a stretch, when each time I've stepped on my board, all I got in return was frustration and anger. Yet, I still love skateboarding the same way I loved it when I was twelve.

How often have you gone skating and were unable to make a single thing - feet flailing, wheels biting, spending more time picking yourself up and chasing your board than riding it? Now, count the times you've gone out skating and felt solid as a rock - board completely at your will, learning a new trick in 3 tries and sticking the old ones like you own them. Finally, think about the times when all you've felt is normalcy - you have fun, land your stuff, yet no sense of disappointment or perfection washes over you.

What does all of this tell you? Take a step back and look at who you are as a skateboarder. These collective experiences will become clear. The driving force behind life is balance. And so it is with skateboarding. Each time you ride, you will inevitably be led to a sense of peace and balance.

If you ride away clean, be stoked. If you slam, get back up. - Scott J. Ward, Editor

Cnaan Omer

NOLLIE OFF A LOADING DOCK SEQUENCE: OLSEN / MONSTERSKATE

What's your name? How old are you? Where are you from?

My name is Cnaan Omer. I'm 17. I was born in Jerusalem. I lived there until I was 10. Then I lived in Los Angeles for a while. Then I moved to Santa Barbara.

When did you start skating?

The summer before I turned 14. My first day skating this guy was making fun of me. He was trying to get me to drop in on this mini ramp. So I just dropped in.

Do you set goals for yourself?

For a while I was just going out and skating. Recently, I've been shooting photos, so my goal has been to go out and land the trick that I am shooting. Sometimes I don't even know what trick I want to try until I get to the spot.

What do you like to skate?

Some days I'll ride a manual pad, then other days a ledge will be more fun. It's day to day. I like putting benches down stairs. That's fun to skate.

What Transworld award did you win in 2000?

I won a contest award. I showed up at the Slam City Jam in Canada with nowhere to stay. I got a ticket out there, and stayed at people's houses. The contest had a good course and I was having fun. I skated around, landed my tricks and won. I went out there not even thinking I could win a contest. After that, I got sponsored and they started sending me to contests. Then I would just go out there and try my best. Just do easy stuff I was consistent with. And I kept on winning. Eventually contests get old and become kind of lame though.

Do you see the possibility of girls skating to the level that guys are skating at?

I don't think every girl who steps on a skateboard is out there to change the world. We're just like guys, but we have boobs. There are girls out there who are pushing it. When they see guys trying stuff, that's what they think they should be doing. I've always skated with guys, so I just try and keep up with them. There aren't enough girl skaters out there yet for me to base my skating on, so I look toward the guys. One time, I was talking to this girl and she was telling me there are limitations to what girls can do on a skateboard.

Do you think that's true?

No.

In contests, do you like to skate against guys and girls, or just girls?

I don't really think about it that much. The only reason I'll do a contest is if I am in town. I am not scared to lose. I just want to have fun and hang out with people. I guess it's good to skate against girls because that's how you make money. It's always nice to have a couple grand extra. Anybody would love that. When I go to Tampa it's mainly all guys. It would be nice to have it mixed all the time, but at the same time I wouldn't make as much money.

What tricks are you working on?

I hurt my ankle really bad this summer. It threw me off a bit. Every time I turn my ankle, this thing pops out. It's really weird.

Was that after the All Girls Skate Jam in Encinitas?

No. I hurt my ankle before that. That was one of my first contests back. I was so nervous because I hadn't skated in so long. Finally my tricks are coming back to normal. Yesterday I tried a switch flip off of something. It's like a whole other trick to do it off something. It's like learning to skate all over again. I do whatever I am feeling that day.

Are your parents supportive of your skating?

They hate every last second of it. At first they wouldn't buy me a skateboard. They wanted me doing girl stuff instead. I kind of understand, because I wouldn't buy me a skateboard if I were a mom. It's going to change your kid's life.

Don't you think children should be able to choose their own paths?

Yeah, but what if you were a parent who had never heard of skateboarding? I've got three older brothers and one younger brother and none of them skate. But after Slam City Jam they were like, "do you think you can ever win again?" To a person who doesn't, skate contests are everything. So after winning a contest and bringing home more money than they ever brought home at my age, they are like, "wow, maybe there is something to this." So we've been talking a lot lately and they are starting to understand it more. I wouldn't say they are supportive yet, but they definitely are beginning to understand. They've never driven me to a contest or helped out.

What are some of your other interests?

I like ice cream. I like to draw a lot. Right now I am taking some classes at the city college. It seems like a good thing to do. I took an adult education class where we drew models. I am learning technique. Learning is good, because it expands your mind. I have a lot to learn. It's up there with skateboarding.

Who are your sponsors?

Etnies shoes, Rat Bones wheels, Blink, Halos bearings, Independent Trucks and Pharmacy Board Shop.

Who do you want to thank?

Donny from Pharmacy, Matt Sharky, Grant from Systems, Dave, Leo, David and Little Eric.

ZEN AND THE ART OF SKATEBOARD ASSEMBLY

A POCKET GUIDE FOR THOSE OF YOU WHO DON'T ALREADY KNOW HOW TO PUT A SKATEBOARD TOGETHER, AND WISH TO LEARN.

LAYING THE GRIPTAPE DOWN.

FILING THE GRIPTAPE.

CUTTING THE GRIPTAPE FROM THE UNDERSIDE.

POKING THE HOLES.

MOUNTING THE TRUCKS.

Welcome to Monsterskate's skateboard assembly guide. If you have no idea how to put a skateboard together, this is the perfect place to begin.

At this point we assume you've purchased wheels, trucks, a deck, bearings and mounting hardware. Sure, you could buy a complete, or have a skate shop put your board together for you, but what fun would that be? We feel it's important to learn how to assemble and properly maintain your board so that you will truly enjoy riding it. The better care you take of your board, the more of a personality it will develop.

WORK AREA

You'll need a clean, flat, well-lit work area to assemble your board. If possible, use a workbench that is approximately belly button height. This will allow you the best possible leverage for assembly. In addition, you may want to lay down a rubber mat or a piece of dense carpet to offer a slip-free surface. This will aid in the prevention of loosing small parts.

TOOLS

You will need:

1) A Standard wrench, or socket, set containing 3/8", 1/2" and 9/16" sizes.

2) A Phillips-Head screwdriver or an Allen wrench (Allen wrenches are usually included with the mounting hardware that require it)

3) A razor blade or utility knife (the sharper the better)

4) A file (preferably with a rounded edge)

*Monsterskate sells several brands of skate-tools that come with the necessary components in order to assemble a board - minus the razor blade and file. (See page 61)

GRIPTAPE

A sheet of griptape, whether it's pre-cut, or cut from a roll, should exceed the length of your board. Pre-cut griptape is usually about 33" in length.

1) Lay your deck face down on the work area. Make sure the top surface is dry, and free of dirt and debris; this ensures the griptape will stick to its full potential.

2) Hold the griptape by the corner and peel off the tan backing, just like you would peal the backing off of a sticker. Make sure you don't stick the griptape to anything by accident, as it will readily adhere to anything it comes in contact with.

3) Using both hands, hold the griptape several inches above the deck and align it so that the sheet will cover the entire surface.

4) Lower one side of the griptape onto your deck's nose, or tail.

5) Imagine that you are putting up wallpaper and roll the griptape onto your deck. Roll it on slowly and deliberately, smoothing it down in order to prevent air bubbles.

6) Once it's down, use your fingertips and the palms of your hands to press evenly over the entire surface of the deck. This ensures that the griptape adheres completely.

7) Next, you need to remove the excess griptape that is hanging over the edge of the deck. At a 45-degree angle, file around the entire edge of the deck several times using moderate pressure.

8) With the razor blade, or utility knife, cut along the filed edge of the deck, removing the excess griptape. The best way to do this is to cut from the underside of the deck so that you can see the razor blade protruding upwards through the griptape. Cut towards yourself in a slow and deliberate fashion, keeping your arms and fingers clear of the blade. A steady arm and a sharp blade will make cutting much easier.

TIGHTENING THE HARDWARE.

SETTING UP THE BEARINGS.

PUSHING THE BEARING INTO THE WHEEL.

PUTTING A NUT ON THE TRUCK AXLE.

THE FINISHED PRODUCT.

MOUNTING HARDWARE AND TRUCKS

The next step towards completing your board is to attach your trucks with the mounting hardware.

1) Poke starter holes through the griptape via the predrilled mounting holes in your deck using the Phillips-Head screwdriver, or Allen wrench.

2) Insert the mounting hardware through the poked holes – griptape side up.

3) With the palm of one hand, hold the mounting hardware from the griptape side, and use your other hand to fasten the truck.

4) Continue holding the mounting hardware from the griptape side, and hand tighten the mounting hardware nuts. This will secure your truck to the deck.

5) Repeat steps 3 – 4 for the other truck.

When you put the trucks on, make sure the kingpin and bushings face inward, toward the middle of your deck. The kingpin and bushings of both trucks should face each other. It is imperative your trucks are mounted this way; otherwise, your board will turn in a manner that could result in injury.

6) Using the 3/8" wrench and Phillips-Head screwdriver, or Allen wrench, tighten the mounting hardware.

7) Tighten each bolt moderately at first. This ensures that the trucks are secured with even pressure onto the deck. If your trucks are moving from side to side, this means you need to tighten the bolts down a bit more. Be careful not to over-tighten the hardware either. If the bolts are pulling through the top of the deck, you've tightened them too much.

BEARINGS AND WHEELS

The last step is to insert the bearings in your wheels, and to then attach the wheels to your trucks.

1) Since most of you probably don't own a bearing press, the next best thing to use is your truck.

2) Remove the nuts from your truck's axle.

3) Slide one bearing onto the axle, and place a wheel on top of the bearing. Using the palms of your hands, press the wheel down firmly onto the bearing. The bearing is securely inserted into the wheel when you feel it slide in and stop.

4) Since each wheel needs two bearings, flip the wheel over and insert another bearing.

5) Repeat steps 1 - 4 for the three other wheels.

6) Before attaching the wheels to your trucks, place one washer between the truck and wheel, and one washer between the wheel and nut. Washers prevent your wheels from locking if you experience axle slip, or if the nut accidentally tightens itself.

7) Hand-tighten the nut onto the truck's axle.

8) Using the 1/2" wrench, tighten the nuts down moderately. Don't tighten the nuts down so that your wheels can't spin. Your wheels should have several millimeters of play between the truck axle and the nut.

9) Repeat steps 6 - 8 for the three other wheels.

Most skate-tools come with bearing insertion devices. The problem with most of these devices is that there is little or no leverage-point to work against. Using a truck to insert your bearings allows you to use your board as a leverage-point.

You're finished! That's all there is too it. Go skate!
